HUNTERS' GHOSTLY FIND.

Remains of a Man Found in a Ravine Indicate Murder.

Woodstock, Va., Oct. 25.—The remains of an unknown man were found yesterday in a ravine near the public road leading from Zepp to Mount Olive, this county. A party of men were out hunting wild grapes, and someone noticed the skeleton of the head. From an examination made by Dr. J. M. Brown the man has been dead about eight months.

He wore a dark, checked suit and holes in his back and left arm indicate that he was shot with a load of buckshot. A pistol of 38-calibre, lead pencil, gold collar button, pair of gold eye-glasses, and some cartridges were found in the clothes. A silk umbrella found a few feet distant was in good condition except a piece was torn out, presumably to obliterate the name.

By some the remains are supposed to be that of a revenue man, as about a year ago a number of illicit distilleries were raided not far distant from the place of discovery. The ravine, while not far from a public road, is said to be a lonely spot. Nothing will be left undone to trace the mystery to its starting point.

CAPT. VENABLE'S WILL.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 25.—The will of the late Capt. Samuel W. Venable has been admitted to probate in the corporation court. His estate is valued at about $300,000. He leaves his fine family residence in this city, with its contents, to his wife, Elizabeth T. Venable, and $30,000 to her and her heirs forever. He leaves small bequests to some of his relatives, and the remainder of his estate to his children.

W. K. ANDREWS & CO., 219 Salem avenue, have had years of experience in the coal and wood business. They know what is required in the business. They have the largest and most convenient yard in the city. They handle every variety of coal sold in the city. They have more shed room and keep more teams than any other dealer in the city. They have polite and accommodating drivers, and deliver promptly coal and wood, nice and dry, from their extensive sheds. Their teams are all belled.

A CHANGE.

The coal yard known as Vaughan Coal Company has been changed and is now known as a Union Coal Company, and we respectfully solicit the patronage of all union men of this city, as we are both union men. By E. L. Vaughan and Bud Adams. Phone 178.

SALEM

EDWARD JETER, REPORTER.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Attorney John W. Carter, of Martinsville, Va., to Miss M. Kiziah Drewry, of the same city. The interesting event will take place on Thursday, November 4, at high noon in Christ Church in Martinsville. Mr. Carter is well and favorably known in Salem, being an alumnus of Roanoke College. His first wife was Miss Mary Smead, of this place. Many friends here tender congratulations in advance.

C. M. Knox, a traveling man of Richmond, was in the city yesterday.

Mrs. J. H. Johnson, of Market street, is quite ill at her home and has not been able to sit up for about two weeks.

Miss Carrie Francis, of Marion, Va., is visiting in the city, the guest of the Misses Francis, in West Salem.

Dr. T. E. Carson, of Roanoke city, and Dr. James E. Armstrong, of the Salem Methodist Church, exchanged pulpits last Sunday morning.

J. M. Booker, Sr. and Jr., of the Hill City, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Griffin at their Union street home.

C. T. Campbell, of the Southern Express Company, after a short visit to relatives here, has returned to his headquarters in Chattanooga.

Ivan Yonce, of the United States mail service, left yesterday for a hunt in Bland county.

Rev. H. C. V. Campbell, pastor of the Salem Presbyterian Church, is attending a meeting of Presbytery at Fredericksburg.

Mrs. Martha Jacobs, of Bedford county, the mother of J. J. Agnew, is visiting her son's family at his home on Chestnut street.

Mrs. J. B. Baskerville, of Pulaski, is visiting in the city, the guest of W. S. Baskerville and wife.

Frank Gordon, of Elliston, who recently returned from Brazil, where he went in the interest of the Bonsack Cigarette Machine Company, is visiting friends in the city.

J. J. Scott, cashier of the Rocky Mount Exchange Banking Company, and wife are here on a visit to friends and relatives.

Miss Mollie Paris, of West Salem, received painful though not serious bruises yesterday morning by the upsetting of a carriage in which she was riding.

The accident occurred in front of W. G. Hart's on Main street, being the result of a short turn and the consequent upsetting of the vehicle. Dr. Oscar Wiley rendered the necessary surgical attention.

Libby Harris, colored, the wife of Jim Harris, died yesterday morning of consumption and the remains were interred yesterday afternoon in East Hill cemetery.

A marriage license has been issued from the clerk's office to Jno. O. Carroll, of Franklin county, and Sarah M. Richard, of Henry county.

Jno. Hatcher has gone to Bland Court House, where he will read law.

For the past year earthquakes have been frequent in Southwest Virginia, extending into North Carolina and Tennessee, giving rise to the belief that mighty forces are at work beneath the mountain chains of the Old Dominion. The seismic shock felt here last summer was one of terrific force and but for its short duration would inevitably have wrecked many buildings. Since then other shocks at close intervals have been felt and portentous rumblings heard, like the swift rush of subterranean streams or the mingled sounds of earth and air lashed into fury by a mighty tempest. These hollow mutterings of seismic thunder have also been frequently heard near Pearisburg, in Giles county, but we have never heard any explanation of them. Every effect must have a cause and local shocks must prove that subterranean fires or collapsing strata are disintegrating the earth beneath its quiet exterior, and evidently these forces are at work not far from where we live. Earthquakes are told occur most frequently in volcanic regions. We are not supposed, however, to live on a volcanic belt. If this be true then whence the vibrations which have of late shaken the mountains and valleys of Virginia? We should like to hear the explanation of these strange facts from some learned cosmologist.

DALTON ROBBERS SENTENCED.

End of Conspiracy Which Has Cost the Southern a Large Sum.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 25.—The most remarkable car robbery case on record in the South ended in the superior court at Dalton, Ga., Judge Alonzo Flite presiding.

Eighteen persons who systematically looted cars of the Southern railway were tried and found guilty. The ringleader, Walter Bohannon, was convicted in five cases and sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. His accomplices, Thomas Kinneman, Benjamin Pearce, Samuel Painter, "Lute" White, William Long and Edward Morris, received sentences ranging from three years to one year. James Harris, the member of the gang who turned State's evidence, was not sentenced, and it is probable upon the recommendation of the superintendent of the Southern railway he will be released or his sentence will be light.

The merchants convicted of receiving stolen goods from the robbers are as follows, all prominent in business and social circles in Dalton and North Georgia: G. M. Cannon, T. J. Peoples, J. H. Bender, Anderson Giddens, Cleo Combee, G. W. Horan, W. B. McCaslon, J. Kirko Farrar, Edward Roberts and Jesse Langston. The court sentenced all these merchants to pay, from $1,000 down to $25, and to serve one year on the chain gang, the latter sentence to be suspended on the payment of the fines and costs.

On account of the robberies of which these trials were a result, the railway officials say they paid damages to consignors amounting to $50,000 during the five years the gang was making its depredations.
